Zadanie I (0-5)

Przeczytaj tekst, z którego usunięto pięć zdań. W każdą lukę (1.–5.) wpisz literę, którą oznaczono brakujące zdanie (A–G), tak aby otrzymać spójny i logiczny tekst. Dwa zdania zostały podane dodatkowo i nie pasują do żadnej luki.

$300,000 LIBRARY BOOK FINE

Librarians in New York’s oldest library have uncovered a surprising borrower with overdue books – George Washington. On 5 October 1789, the first president of the United States of America checked out two books from the library in Manhattan. 1._____ His assistant simply wrote “president” next to the titles to show who had taken them out.

2._____ As a result they were able to confirm that one of the books checked out by Washington was still missing. It appeared the president had failed to return it. 3._____ For being more than 221 years late the borrower should pay a fine of $300,000 at today’s prices. The library issued a statement. The head librarian Mark Bartlett said: “4._____ However, we would be very happy if we were able to get the missing book back.”

After staff at Mount Vernon, Washington’s former home in Virginia, learned of the situation, they got in touch with the library. 5._____ On 19 May 2010 the library hosted a ceremony at which it was presented by the Mount Vernon staff.

Adapted from <http://news.bbc.co.uk>

- A. Under the rules of the library, he should have done that by 2 November 1789.
- B. Some years ago the librarians counted all the books they had in stock.
- C. They offered to replace the book with another copy of the same edition.
- D. The library, which was the only one in New York at the time, was used by many Congressmen.
- E. He did not even bother to sign his name in the notebook where all borrowers’ names were recorded.
- F. Simply because the missing books were kept secret for years by the library staff.
- G. We’re not actively trying to recover the unpaid fine.
